REVISED DRAFT
Rev 6/31/90

FADE IN:

1 INT. DARKENED BEDROOM - DAWN 1

CLOSEUP ON RADIO/ALARM CLOCK reads 5:59 a.m. The digital numbers flip to 6:00 and the RADIO goes on: a talk show host speaks in a soft, soothing voice:

JACK (V.O.)

It's six a.m.... Oooooooo and that bed never felt sooooo goood... Mmm, you linger in a warm, gentle dream state... ever so comfortable... ever so safe...

SFX: LOUD BATTLE NOISE.

JACK (V.O.)

(continuing)

... But suddenly you realize it's Monday!

A woman SCREAMS... the D.J., JACK, speaks at a rapid fire pace... a HAND from O.S. tries to shut the alarm off in the dark.

JACK (V.O.)

(continuing)

... your hand races to shut off the alarm before your mind wakes up...

SCREAMS... the HAND knocks over a water glass and grabs the clock but can't find the off switch.

JACK (V.O.)

(continuing)

... But it's too late! If you don't get out of bed now, you'll never have enough time to blow dry your hair that special way... You'll never make that nine o'clock meeting that your partner will be early for... You will be late and everyone will notice!

The HAND bangs the clock violently...

JACK (V.O.)

(continuing)

... Rumors will fly about you losing your edge... Someone will casually mention they saw you downing shots of tequila at the Xmas party and before you know it, you're spilling your guts to a Senate committee or selling yourself on street corners to middle aged men from the Midwest...

... Hey, it's Monday morning, and I'm Jack Lucas.

The HAND rips the clock off the night table.

and Senator Payton having this sleazy affair?

WOMAN (V.O.)
(angry)
I am tired of the public thinking they've got the right to invade a person's private life.

4 INT. BATHROOM - MORNING 4

A woman sensually applying lipstick and makeup as:

Spotlight Celebrity...

WOMAN (V.O.)

That's still all anybody talks about.
Nobody even thinks to ask whether we loved each other.

4A EXT. WALL STREET AREA - MORNING 4A

Hordes of business people stampeding towards their jobs...

JACK (V.O.)

Because nobody cares about that, sweetheart. Nobody wants to hear about your romantic love. No. We want to hear about the back seats of limos... the ruined lives of people we want to be... new and exotic uses for champagne corks...

5 INT. COFFEE SHOP - MORNING 5

People line up to buy coffee and danish.

WOMAN (V.O.)

Listen, I have been humiliated enough already!

JACK (V.O.)

Perhaps not -- We need those details...

EDWIN (V.O.)
I've missed you too, Jack.

JACK AND CREW (O.S.)
Awww.....!

SFX: "A SUMMER PLACE" -- THE NEEDLE IS SCRATCHED OFF

Edwin laughs, perhaps a bit over zealousy -- He is a simple minded soul... a lonely child in the body of a lonely man.

JACK (O.S.)
So, Edwin, baby, this is Sunrise Confession time... what have you got for us?

EDWIN (V.O.)
I... I... went to this bar... this very, ya know -- hard-to-get-in place.... called Babbitt's...

The HANDS of the radio host pushing buttons, bending a paperclip out of shape...

JACK (O.S.)
Yeah, I know the place. It's one of those chic yuppie gathering holes.

EDWIN (V.O.)
(simple minded laughter)
Okay... I know but... I met this beautiful girl...

Host's HANDS pop in a tape: "WEDDING BELLS," then a NEEDLE scratching it off.

6 CONTINUED:

JACK (O.S.)

Now, Edwin, if you start telling me you're in love again, I'm going to have to remind you of the time we made you propose to that check-out girl at Thrifty's that you liked so much. Remember her reaction...

Another TAPE, another button pressed:

BLACK SEVENTIES GROUP (V.O.)

(sings)

"Mister Big Stuff... Huh... Tell me... Who do you think you are... Mister Big Stuff... you're never gonna get my love..."

(defensive)

I wasn't serious about her, Jack. That was just a joke for you guys... She was just a girl. This is a beautiful woman. She wears pearls.

CAMERA KEEPS MOVING about the studio and the host, but we never see his face:

JACK (O.S.)

Yeah, but does she swallow, Edwin?

EDWIN (V.O.)

I think she likes me... she gave me her number, but she must work a lot cause when I call she's never home... But I think we'll go out this weekend... I've...

JACK (O.S.)

Yeah, Edwin, sure... and Pinocchio is a true story... Edwin! Wake up! This is a fairytale...

The crew perform their duties with little enthusiasm.

EDWIN (V.O.)

No, Jack, no it's not... She likes me.

JACK (O.S.)

She gave you the old brusheroo, kiddo... Believe me -- this tart will call!

MICHAEL McDONALD (V.O.)

(sings)

"What a fool believes... He sees..."

EDWIN (V.O.)

(over the song)

Jack!

JACK (O.S.)

Edwin... Edwin... Edwin... I told you about these people. They only mate with their own kind. It's called Yuppie-In-Breeding... that's why so many of them are retarded and wear the same clothes. They're not human.
They can't feel love. They can only negotiate love moments. They're evil, Edwin. They're repulsed by imperfection and horrified by the banal -- everything America stands for. Edwin, they have to be stopped before it's too late. It's us or them.

Slight pause, as Edwin considers this.

EDWIN (V.O.)

(serious)

Okay, Jack.

END CREDITS.

CAMERA PANS from a wall clock as JACK LUCAS winds up his broadcast:

JACK (O.S.)

Well, folks... It's been a thrill, as always.

(false sincerity)

"Have a perfect day"...

We PAN several studio technicians making ready for the end of the broadcast to the talk show host Jack Lucas -- handsome, aggressive, intelligent -- an underground media arriverderch... I'll be sure to send you a thought today as I lie in the backseat of my stretch limo, have sex with the teenager of my choice... And that thought will be: Thank God I'm me!

Jack motions to techy behind glass. Then leans back in his chair, as a RADIO COMMERCIAL begins.

His expression seems grave -- not one you would expect after a successful broadcast. He appears tired and annoyed. He sighs in relief that it is over. The studio team work around him in silence -- with no indication of the relationship they have "on air." Jack pulls out a bottle of aspirins and takes two.

JACK

(continuing; annoyed, to the room)

I want you all to know I'm getting sick again and it's because someone keeps forgetting to raise the thermostat before I come in here...
My fucking ass is freezing for the first hour.

A techy makes mocking faces behind his back. Another techy suppresses a laugh.

LOU

Jack, of course... Not even a question. When I spoke to him on the phone this morning, I could actually smell how much they want you for it. I could smell it over the phone.

A street bum, half dressed, walks in between the stopped cars, banging on the windows and asking for money. He BANGS on Jack's window. Jack stares at him through the tinted glass.

LOU

TOLD FRIENDS; I CAN'T BLINK WITHOUT PAIN."

The picture of a bug-eyed society woman is below the caption. A hand comes out from behind the paper, reaching for a bottle of scotch on the table. The bottle disappears behind the paper.

ANNE, the owner of the store, enters abruptly -- closing the office door behind her, a cigarette dangling from her mouth. Her desk is organized litter -- her walls are filled with porno tapes. She searches for one as she talks:

ANNE

These people are insane today. They took insane pills...

A bit about Anne as she searches for a video: Anne is in her mid-to-late thirties... and she is all woman! She has a raw, earthy, unmistakable sensuality. Her red lipstick matches her red nail polish like a hat and glove set. Inlaid on each nail is a rhinestone design of a little star. Her angora sweaters are tight and clinging, giving her breasts a decided lift and perkiness. Her backless pumps slap the ground. A half-smoked cigarette hangs out of her mouth with great expertise -- a skill Anne obviously picked in a high school bathroom. Her voice is thick with a delicious Brooklyn twang.

The man lowers the newspaper: it is Jack Lucas; no longer the aggressive radio star but more -- a man who looks like he hasn't slept in months. An intolerant, paranoid, self-pitying misanthrope. The outrageous articles fascinate him. Anne removes the paper and scotch bottle.

ANNE

(continuing)

Are we going to work today or what?

Jack stares back. Anne waits for an answer. Jack looks through the open office door and sees the store is packed with rush hour customers -- any one, a potential mass murderer.

It's not funny. It's... sophomoric and mindless... and dumb.

ANNE

Then why the hell do we watch all the time?

JACK

(in one breath)
Because it makes me feel good to see how not funny it is and how America doesn't know the first thing about funny which makes it easier not being a famous funny TV celebrity because that would just mean that I'm not really talented.

A handsome man in his forties exits the hotel and walks toward the limo. He is holding the hand of his six year old SON, who is carrying a two foot high plastic, smiling Pinnochio doll. Both father and son are dressed in ties and jackets. Jack watches in envy. His ripped, wet clothes a shabby reflection of the man's. He eyes the limo with longing. As the man tips the doorman, a BUM approaches and asks for money. When the man refuses and turns his back to enter the limo, the Bum becomes aggressive and starts pulling at the man's jacket and yells:

BUM

Merry fucking Christmas... Happy
fucking New Year!!

He continues to harass the man, who pushes his son away. The doorman comes to the man's rescue. As they both try to pull the Bum off the man, the six year old son notices Jack and walks calmly over.

Jack, mesmerized by the scene, doesn't notice the Boy.

BOY (O.S.)

Mr. Bum.

Jack looks down. The Boy stands directly before him. Jack sort of smiles. The Boy extends his arms and offers the Pinnochio doll to Jack. Jack is confused but the Boy simply deposits the doll into his arms and walks back to the limo. By that time, the Bum is being held by the doorman, and both father and son enter the limo.

Jack holds the doll. He is surrounded by street people asleep or drunk on the sidewalk near the hotel. He angrily realizes there's not much difference between him and them.

21 EXT. EAST RIVER, NEW YORK CITY - NIGHT

21

CLOSEUP of two feet standing beneath the railing overlooking the East River. Taped to one ankle is a brick. Taped to the other is a brick around a smiling Pinocchio doll. An empty bottle of liquor drops to the ground and SHATTERS.

Jack stands prepared to surrender his fate and make the final leap. He stares at the river, almost smiling. He has made his decision. He is calm and serene. He raises his foot over the railing.

The headlights of a car drive INTO FRAME, illuminating Jack. He turns to see:

LEATHER (O.S.)

What's going on?...

Two white upperclass JUVENILE DELINQUENTS -- one wearing a leather jacket, the other a high school windbreaker -- get out of the car. Each is carrying a gallon of gasoline. Leather also carries a bat. Jack is drunk but he is immediately aware of the danger when he spots the gasoline cans.

LEATHER

I said, what's going on?
(walks up to Jack)
What are you doing here?

Jack shakes his head and before he knows it, Leather shoves the bat into his gut, sinking Jack to his knees. Windbreaker places the gasoline cans on the bench and begins to unscrew them.

LEATHER

(continuing)
You shouldn't hang around this neighborhood.

JACK

(clutching his stomach)
I... I was just leaving.

LEATHER

People spend a lot of hard earned money for this neighborhood. It's not fair... looking out their windows to see your ass asleep on the streets...

JACK

Yes... I... I agree...

LEATHER

.....Me neither.

JACK

No...No please...!

WINDBREAKER hands LEATHER the can, who raises it above JACK'S head. AS THE GASOLINE SLOWLY LEAKS ONTO A PETRIFIED JACK SEES A FIGURE MOVING OUT FROM THE DARKNESS.

FIGURE

* All hope abandon ye who enter here! *

Startled, THE YOUTHS TURN to the shadows.

LEATHER

What the-....

AN ARROW with a rubber suction tip comes flying out of the dark and connects to WINDBREAKER's groin.

WINDBREAKER

AHHH!

A FIGURE stands backlit - mysterious and powerful, noble and fearless. JACK, LEATHER and WINDBREAKER instinctually bond together in the face of this fourth unknown entity.

The figure turns out to be A BUM. Grimy face, tattered layers of clothing beneath a long over coat, a pork pie hat with a twig sticking out of it like a plume in a helmet of yore. Over his shoulder, a homemade bow and arrow set. Although clearly downtrodden, behind his beaten appearance, there radiates a calm intelligence and strength. There is something distinctly attractive and confident about him. We learn later his name is PARRY; a combination of Don Quixote and Harpo Marx. PARRY stands before them absolutely delighted with himself - hand on hip - beaming with pride..

PARRY

* Unhand that degenerate - you adolescent ass of a one balled donkey! *

LEATHER

It's just a bum...You know, there's enough in here for the two of you.

Ha, ha, ha, ha rubbish...now begone...before

LEATHER walks right up to PARRY.

LEATHER

You a fag too?

PARRY

Fag...a fag you say!?...

"Curst wolf! Thy fury inward on thyself Prey and consume thee!"

LEATHER

Fuck you.

PARRY notices a pimple on LEATHER'S cheek.

PARRY

Oooo...that looks like it hurts.

HE presses the zit.

LEATHER

OWWW....What are you nuts?!

PARRY

BINGO! Tell the man what he's won!

WINDBREAKER grabs PARRY, pinning his arms behind him.
WINDBREAKER laughs. PARRY just turns his head and stares into his eyes, causing WINDBREAKER to feel wierd.

PARRY

I advise you to let us go.

LEATHER

You advise us!

PARRY

You're out numbered son.

PARRY glances over LEATHER's shoulder. LEATHER TURNS to see:
A BUM pushing a shopping cart comes out of the darkness. HE is mumbling to himself incoherently. Another BUM, appears from the dark, unnerving WINDBREAKER. PARRY looks to a third BUM, stepping out of the dark, menacingly.

Taken by themselves, the BUMS would look harmless and pathetic. But in the context of their uncharacteristic organization - THEY appear frightening.

- * LEATHER and WINDBREAKER automatically whip out switchblades *
- * and take a "rumble" stance - as if protecting their *
- * catch, Jack. Jack sort of sides with them if for no other *
- * reason than - he's known them longer. *

LEATHER tries to remain confident. HE laughs.

LEATHER

- * Come on! Go for it! *
- * What the hell are they gonna do? *
- * They can't do nothin! *

PARRY

- * Nothing! They can do nothing! *
- * Gentlemen! *

PARRY takes a few steps back and raises his hand.

- * JACK stands close to LEATHER and WINDBREAKER, who prepare *
- * themselves for attack. *

PARRY lowers his hand which acts as a signal for the BUMS. The BUMS reach into their coats and each pull out a FLASHLIGHT, which they shine at each other as THEY SING:

THREE BUMS

- * I like New York in June...How about you? *
- * I like a Gershwin tune...How about you? *

JACK, LEATHER and WINDBREAKER are at a loss. The BUMS aren't getting all the words, but they're definitely in sync.

- * PARRY lowers his hand proudly. The BUMS keep singing and turn *
- * their flashlights upon JACK, LEATHER and WINDBREAKER - blinding them to PARRY. *

WINDBREAKER

Shit.

LEATHER brandishes his knife towards the dark spot where he thinks PARRY stands. But PARRY takes a flying step back.

* As he speaks, the Bums stop singing and hum the song. *

PARRY

Son...There comes a time in every man's life...and you will learn this, when and if you become men....

* * *

* From his hat, PARRY pulls a long tube sock tied at the end and filled with a softball at the bottom...

....That there are only three things in this world ya need...

HE begins to swing the sock over his head - centrifugally gaining force.

PARRY

...Respect for all kinds of life,
....the love of another person who you can trust and pork on a regular basis
....and a nice navy blazer...Oh, and one more thing....always... keep your eye.... on the ball!

PARRY releases the "weapon".

The sock flies out of the darkness and, with amazing accuracy - beans LEATHER on the forehead between his eyes. HE drops his knife to rub his head. HE sinks out of camera:

LEATHER

Ow...Ow....OW!

WINDBREAKER grows worried as PARRY reaches in to the lining of his coat, pulls out another "sock weapon" and starts swinging.

PARRY

Of course, the ability to bean a shithead can be a fabulous advantage.

WINDBREAKER runs to the car and drives away.
PARRY crosses to a speechless JACK.

PARRY

Are you all right?

PARRY kneels down, pulls out some rope from his coat and proceeds to tie up LEATHER, who is disoriented and dazed. PARRY hands JACK LEATHER'S knife. Sickened by it, JACK flings it in the water.

LEATHER
* You can't leave me tied up out here alone, you fucking faggot! *

PARRY
(PULLS DOWN LEATHERS PANTS, EXPOSING HIS BUTT)
You won't be alone for long.

* PARRY pulls out a triangle and begins ringing it. *

JACK
I need a drink.

PARRY
I know a great place.
(Raising his hand HE calls to BUM 1:)

Jack and Parry sit facing the three Bums from the previous scene - A Black, a middle-aged Irishman and an Ex-Hippy - and the Pinnochio Doll. The Foursome sit against the giant base of the bridge discussing the issues of the day as they pass a bottle. OTHER BUM CLIQUES are scattered throughout the lot.

BLACK

...There ain't no justice in life! There's just satisfaction. And the death penalty's just another violation of my constitutional right to satisfaction Goddamn it.

IRISHMAN

(a lit cigarette hangs from his mouth)
I hate that.

HIPPY

So, you mean if somebody like, killed your mother, you wouldn't want him dead?

BLACK

Sure I would. But I should get to kill him Goddamn it.

IRISHMAN

(explaining further)
He gets to kill him. That's democracy, see.

A LULL takes over as they all consider this.
JACK sitting the furthest apart from the group, looks like he's in the middle of a nightmare.

JACK

(mumbles to himself)
This is it. I'm in hell. Damned to an eternity of idiotic conversation.

IRISHMAN

PARRY

IRISHMAN

Can't complain.

The IRISHMAN absent mindedly flicks his cigarette ashes onto JACK'S SLEEVE, which is soaked with gasoline. The SLEEVE IGNITES. JACK panics - waving his is arm, trying to get it out. PARRY is both amazed and impressed - seeing it as a sign. The bums talk casually as JACK triesto rip off his coat.

BLACK

Crazy fuck.

HIPPY

(to IRISHMAN)

So what do you think of the death penalty?

IRISHMAN

Death's definitely a penalty. Ain't no fucking gift. Life's too goddamn short.

With the fire out, JACK tries to leave, saying:

JACK

I better be going...

IRISHMAN

(thrusting the bottle at him)

Have a drink...don't be shy!

PARRY

I think they like you.

This worries Jack. PARRY retrieves him and brings him back to the group.

JACK grabs the bottle and drinks - holding back his nausea.

PARRY

Would anyone like a fruit pie?

THREE BUMS (O.C.)

No thank you...Too sweet...to fattening...Goddamn it.

JACK feels sick as the cheap liquor running through him.

* IRISHMAN begins reciting a Chaucer passage in old English. *

* The BLACK stares off, half listening. PARRY turns to JACK, *

* his face beaming, he clasps his hands and says: *

PARRY

Et in arcadia ego.

HIPPY

Man...Why did God invent mediocrity?

This remark acts like a slap in the face to JACK. The others consider it in silence - not really knowing what it means.

The cheap liquor begins to take it's effect and from JACK'S POV, WE FADE OUT OF THE SCENE ON THE NEXT LINES - AS HE CLOSE HIS EYES AND SLIPS INTO A DRUNKEN SLUMBER.

HIPPY (O.C.)

You were phenominal tonight Parry!

SUPER-BUM man! Fucking Marvel Comics...

PARRY

(loud and cheery)

How are you feeling?

Jarred, Jack nods suspiciously. He notices the surroundings --

JACK

Have I died?

PARRY

(friendly)

Hahahahaaa... Nononono... Not yet...
Hahahaha...

JACK

(his head and stomach throbbing)

If you're going to murder me, that's fine... just don't laugh.

He tries to focus his eyes and looks around the room: there is an extremely organized "living area" -- a make-shift kitchen with hot plate, a nail in a wall with clothes on hangers... There is also a dumpster sitting beneath a garbage chute -- The dumpster has planets and stars painted on its side.

Jack looks to the far wall and sees a handmade collage mural: pictures cut out and pasted in a haphazard manner, all medieval in origin; grassy landscapes with castles, knights and maidens on horses, crests and symbols of the Crusades, and various renditions of the Holy Grail... One maiden stands out from the rest -- a frail looking doe-like creature.

On the adjacent wall, however, there are no pictures. Only frantic scribblings in red marker... Out of the scribblings we can see: an evil looking face with a bear amateurishly drawn... a large red horse drawn as if it hurt to get out the image... the style is violent and erratic.

Jack looks to the other wall and finds Parry's arsenal -- homemade "weapons" that also look medieval, like lances made from mop sticks, nets made of knotted rope, slingshots and a shield made from a garbage can cover with a rose painted on it. Against each wall are piled, what seems to be hundreds of books. Jack doesn't know what to make of all this. He is frightened.

JACK

Where am I?

PARRY

My abode... My domicile... My neck of the woods... Hungry? Breakfast? A fruit pie perhaps?

JACK

No... thanks... Listen --

PARRY

My name is Parry...

JACK

(realizes he's barefoot)
Hi... Where are my shoes?

PARRY

They're --

-- What?

JACK

Parry looks like he's listening to someone. Then he smiles broadly at Jack, which makes Jack worry even more.

JACK
The Little People?

PARRY
They said you're The One.

JACK
I'm the one what?

PARRY

Oh shut up!!!

He picks up a can of wintergreen air freshener and starts spraying, with violent strokes, to shut "them" up... Jack gets more nauseous from the smell... Parry yells to the air:

PARRY
(continuing)
... I've got a right to say something. I mean, you're tying my hands here!
(to Jack)
They say you're not ready to know.

JACK
I'm not...

Now, where are those shoes...

Let him guess!! Tch!!

He goes for the air freshener but Jack's reply stops him.

JACK

Uh... gee... well... you seem to be some kind of vigilante...

PARRY

No, no... I mean that sort of happens along the way but no...

I'm on a very special quest.

JACK

A quest?

PARRY

But I need help and they sent you.

Just floating around... hundreds of these... cute little fat people... And they spoke. They said "I" was chosen to help them get back something very important they lost. But my part might be very dangerous. I said "Whoah".... slow down... ya start hearing voices from floating little fat people that tell you you're on a mission for God and you wind up in a mini-series. Then they said "Look in Architecture Today, Feb '88... page 33..."

Parry quickly crosses to a pile of magazines, grabs one and dives back to Jack, who keeps scanning for his shoes. Parry leafs through the magazine and opens to page 33.

PARRY

(continuing)

And there it was... plain as day.

He shows Jack a feature about Langdon Carmichael, a Malcolm Forbes type real estate baron. The five page pictorial depicts his ten million dollar restoration of an old N.Y. Armory into a palatial city home. Caption reads: "REAL ESTATE BILLIONAIRE LANGDON CARMICHAEL'S TOWER OF POWER"...

JACK

Langdon Carmichael?

Carmichael himself -- a dashing bachelor around fifty-five -- is shown standing in his private library beside a glass commode. Parry points to inside the commode, where a golden chalice is displayed.

PARRY

It's the Grail... The Holy Grail.

He indicates the pictures on the collage. Jack's losing it.

Parry tries to speak but:

JACK

I think you're a very nice... very nice psychotic man. I really appreciate what you did for me. It was a very brave and noble thing...

PARRY

Oh please... you're embarrassing me.

JACK

(rising)

I wish you all the luck in the world. When you get the Grail, I'm sure I'll be seeing lots of you on various talk shows...

PARRY

(upset)

But I can't get it... He's...

He runs to the wall with the scribblings in red and indicates the evil face with the beard... He picks up a red marker and begins scribbling furiously -- adding to the face and the horse...

No, I think man was made out of the devil's image and women were created out of God -- because women can have babies which is sorta like creating, and which also explains why women are attracted to men, because, let's face it, the devil is a helluva lot more interesting -- I slept with a few saints and let me tell you... Booooorring!!!... And so the whole point of life, I think, is for men and women to get married so the devil and God can live together and, ya know -- work it out...

Jack notices a brown spot on her chin and pulls away.

JACK

JACK

I get the feeling like I'm... a magnet but I attract shit. Out of all the people in this city, why did I meet a man who's wife I killed?

ANNE

You didn't kill anybody. Stop.

JACK

I wish there was some way I could... just... pay the fine and go home.

Anne crosses to Jack and gently touches him. Jack turns and clutches her to him tightly. Lowering his head to hers, he cries...

ANNE

I know. I know, honey.

29 INT. PARRY'S BASEMENT - THE NEXT DAY

29

Jack is alone in the basement. He slowly walks around the room -- picking up little items here and there, as if trying to discover some clue to Parry. He scans the titles of the piles of books. All of them have something to do with medieval history or literature, myths, or the Crusades... He picks up one of the books and opens it... Page after page has been ripped out anywhere there might have been a picture or a diagram. He comes upon a large scroll that he unravels. It is a map, drawn by Parry, of Langdon Carmichael's house and the surrounding blocks... He rolls it up... The Pinocchio doll sits on a broken chair facing the wall with the nightmarish scribblings... acting like a sentinel.

He crosses to the prominent picture of the maiden with the long hair. He notices a small stand before the picture, with a candle. It is like a shrine with offerings: a flower, a small perfume sampler, a box of Jawbreakers candy and a dime store romance novel. Jack doesn't understand.

FRANK (O.S.)

Can I help you?

JACK

I'm... just looking for Parry...

FRANK

He's not here.

Jack is drawn to the scribblings on the wall and makes out the faint shape of a man on a horse.

JACK

What did you say his name used to be?

CLOSEUP - duffel bag of Parry's things before Jack.

FRANK (O.S.)

Hospital said it would be better if we kept certain things away from him.

Frank speaks O.S. as Jack looks through the items: ... a Master's degree in Medieval History... Another in Medieval Literature...

FRANK (O.S.)

(continuing)

... That's his real name -- Henry Sagan. He was a teacher over at Columbia. They kept him in some mental place in Staten Island... He did not speak for over a year then all of a sudden, he starts talkin' only now he's this Parry guy.

... A torn picture of Parry in a tux... his wedding ring... a thesis entitled THE FISHER KING, A MYTHIC JOURNEY FOR MODERN MAN... Frank continues:

FRANK (O.S.)

(continuing)

... He used to live upstairs with his wife, so when he got released they sent him here. I felt bad. He couldn't work. Nobody wanted him. So I let him stay in the basement. He helps out -- I give him a couple of dollars. People throw things away he gets them.

Jack holds a beautiful photographic portrait of Parry's wife:

The BLACK, the IRISHMAN and the HIPPY are in their usual place. THEY lean against the wall, observing the afternoon life that walks by. JACK enters the scene and asks them where PARRY is. The HIPPY begins to speak and points to his right. JACK nods in appreciation and hands them a couple of dollars.

CUT TO:

32 EXT. CORNER OUTSIDE METROPOLITAN LIFE BUILDING-LATER THAT DAY.

32

JACK approaches PARRY from across the street; he is sitting on top of a car near a souvlaki vendor and eyeing A CLOCK TOWER across the street and to the left of the building. HE studies the time as he recites under his breath (we only hear excerpts):

PARRY

"Soveriegn princess of this captive heart what dire affliction hast thou made me suffer, thus banished from thy presence with reproach, and fettered by thy rigorous command, not to appear again before thy beautiful face. Deign princess, to remember this thy faithful slave, who now endures such misery for love of thee"....

JACK

Parry!

PARRY smiles casually and, without looking at Jack, says..

PARRY

Hi. Jack...

HE then returns his gaze to the clock which is approaching NOON. JACK reaches in his pockets and pulls out some money.

33 EXT. MET LIFE BUILDING - NOON.

33

Several business men and women make their way out of the elevators for lunch. PARRY and JACK position themselves with a clear view of the center elevator. The doors open and after several more aggressive co-workers exit, PARRY'S DAMSEL in distress appears out of a revolving door, but quickly gets "revolved" back into the building....

PARRY

She'll be back....

Finally, Lydia makes an exit.

PARRY

Isn't she a vision?

REACTION SHOT OF A BEWILDERED JACK as he looks at LYDIA - a dowdy, waif-like sparrow of a thing - makes her way through the lobby. SHE is torturously self-conscious, clumsy, formless and plain. She wears loose frocks that give her no shape and make her appear to be swimming in material. SHE wears no make-up; her unstyled hair is kept off her face by a single beret that keeps sliding down her head, and her contact lens are always dry, causing her to blink and use drops.

JACK

Yeah, gorgeous....Look, I'm going.
I just wanted to give you...

Starts to dig in his pocket, but Parry is already off:

PARRY

Let's go.

JACK follows.

CUT TO:

34 EXT - CHINESE RESTAURANT - DAY

34

Behind the glass in interior, we can see LYDIA sitting by herself eating lunch. CAMERA PANS OUT TO THE STREET where PARRY and JACK are sitting on the hood of a car, watching...

PARRY

She loves dumplings. It's her
Wednesday ritual.

LYDIA raises a dumpling to her lips with a pair of chopsticks. SHE then accidentally drops it into a dish of soy sauce and splatters her dress. Unnerved, she hastily wipes herself down, knocking over a glass of water when she removes the napkin.

PARRY

Isn't she sweet. She does that every time...

35 EXT. BOOKSTAND NEAR GRAND CENTRAL STATION - DAY

Jack and Parry have followed Lydia into a bookstore. She stands browsing through a revolving bookstand. They watch from a distance.

PARRY

She buys a new book every two days.

Lydia spins too hard, sending books flying off. She replaces the books, but keeps one called "Loves Lusty Longings"...

PARRY

(continuing; smiles with great affection)

She's into trash. Whadda you gonna do?

CUT TO:

36 EXT. MET LIFE BUILDING - DAY

36

Parry and Jack are following Lydia, when she stops at a newsstand.

PARRY

She's got a real sweet tooth. If anybody ever told me I'd be in love with a woman who eats Jawbreakers, I'd say they were nuts.

(reverentially)

But look at that jaw!

Jack doesn't want to look. If the Little People made Parry seem crazy, this infatuation confirms him as beyond hope.

CUT TO:

37 EXT. MET LIFE BUILDING - DAY

Lydia buys some candy then turns and walks back toward her office building, once again waiting her turn to dive into the revolving doors. She disappears into the building.

37

JACK

Do you follow her every day?

PARRY

Huh-huh. I'm deeply smitten.

JACK

Who is she? What's her name?

PARRY

I don't know.

A businessman, walking in the opposite direction, throws a candy wrapper on the street as he passes Jack and Parry. Parry suddenly stops, outraged, pulls out a slingshot and fires a stone at the man's head. The businessman is hit but doesn't know how, since Parry grabs Jack's arm and resumes walking casually in the opposite direction.

JACK

Why did you do that?

PARRY

Well, if every time someone did something offensive they hit in the head with a pebble, I think they might alter their behavior. What do you think Jack...

Before Jack can respond, PARRY spots a rummage find:

PARRY

* Oh look! A cooler!

* Parry spots an abandoned COOLER filled with junk and starts going through it. Things are getting weird again, so JACK seizes the moment to accomplish his initial task - he pulls out a fifty dollar bill and hands it to PARRY.

JACK

Here...I just would like to help you. I thought...maybe...you could use some money.

PARRY

Fifty dollars?

I mean, what's it going to take!...

PARRY

No..no, it's..I don't what to say.
This is so nice of you...Jack...

HE hugs him on the street which embarasses JACK to no end.

JACK

(pulling away)
That's O.K.

PARRY

Can I take you to lunch?

JACK

No..I have to get back to work.
Take care of yourself.

JACK walks away. CAMERA stays on JACK for a few yards until he turns around and sees:

PARRY handing the money to a BUM in a doorway, yelling into an imaginary phone.

BUM

SELL!....SELL!....SELL!
(HE takes the money from PARRY)
BUY!....BUY!....BUY!....

JACK

HEY!!!...HEY!

JACK walks back to PARRY, who is explaining to the BUM, who is now talking gibberish:

PARRY

Well, I think you should be realistic.
Ya can't start an ad agency on fifty dollars!

PARRY

Well what am I gonna do with it?

JACK

I don't know. But I gave it to you...to help YOU...not him.

CUT TO:

38 * EXT. LANGDON CARMICHAEL'S TOWNHOUSE - DAY.

On the Upper East Side, PARRY and JACK stand across the tree-lined street from the ten million dollar armory/house.

PARRY

Pretty impressive huh?...Don't let it scare you. I'll admit it's formidable but everything has it's weakness.

JACK

You can't just break into Langdon Carmichael's house. This man has done nothing.

PARRY

O.K...let me explain this one more time...The Holy Grail is in -....

JACK

All right! Listen - please...don't start drooling or...rolling your eyes when I tell you this but - You shouldn't be doing this..There is no Holy Grail.

PARRY

Of course there is, Jack. What do you think the Crusades were - a frat initiation? I don't think so...There has to be a Grail.

JACK

Look, you're only sort of insane, really. People like you can lead semi-normal lives. You could get a job...

PARRY

I don't need a job. I have a quest.

JACK

I take it back - you're fucking deranged...
And you're going to get yourself killed

PARRY

why you're saying this.
...You're afraid there's danger and you're trying to protect me.

JACK

No. I think you're a moron and I don't want to get into trouble.

Ignoring this, PARRY gets filled with emotion and hugs JACK.

PARRY

...You are such a great guy. First the money, now this.
(to the LITTLE PEOPLE)
Isn't he fabulous!?

JACK

(pulling away)
Please don't hug me in public again, O.K.?

PARRY

I LOVE THIS MAN...YA HEAR ME JADED CITY...
(JACK is mortified)
....I'M DAFFY ABOUT THIS GUY AND I DON'T CARE WHO KNOWS IT!!!

That's why the Little People sent you.
Just like magic.

JACK

I don't believe in little floating people! THERE IS NO MAGIC!

PARRY

So what? You going to help me?

JACK

WILL YOU PLEASE... please listen to me ...

(HE GRABS PARRY by the shoulders)

You know none of this is true - the Grail, the voices...

There's a part of you that knows this isn't true.

I know who you are...

or who you were.

You don't belong on the

You were a teach at Hunter College.

Don't you remember?...

You're acting really-

No, no, no, no...

(SCREAMS)

PARRY breaks away from him. HE falls back onto the ground.

THE SCREAM STOPS and is replaced by an eerie SILENCE.

As if sound were ripped out of space. JACK speaks but no sound comes out...We are in PARRY'S world for this brief moment...JACK leans over to help PARRY, but the latter inches away...fearful of the vision he sees: something out of sight, looming over JACK, breathing FIERY SMOKE...JACK tries to raise PARRY off the ground and, in doing so, the vision for PARRY

HE embraces PARRY by the shoulders. PARRY turns to him opening

Frustrated, JACK turns to leave but this time there is a sound -

Jack smiles at this observation. He then tries to get Parry's attention.

JACK

You'll never see her in this crowd.

Parry doesn't answer. He looks like a dog waiting for its master. People walk by Jack at a frantic pace. He sits uncomfortably against a wall. A man almost steps on him as he walks by and tosses a coin at Sid, missing the cup and forcing Sid to bend over... Jack picks the coin up for him.

SID

Feeling strangely at ease, strangely apart of everyone around him -- a group of lost souls listening to a woman bare her soul in song. He looks to spot Parry, rises and crosses to him...

48D

Parry watches as Lydia exits the main floor (the waltz has ended) just as Jack speaks his line:

JACK

It's such a great song.

PARRY

(referring to his own song)

It's a classic.

Jack looks in the direction of Parry's stare and sees Lydia exit.

PARRY

(continuing)

God. Just one night with her. I'd die happy.

Jack hears this as if a light bulb went off above his head.

CUT TO:

49 INT. LYDIA'S APARTMENT - DUSK

49

A door opens. Lydia enters with a bag of groceries she picked up on the way. She turns on the light to reveal an extremely neat, albeit modest, one bedroom apartment. She carries the grocery bag into the kitchen.

Out of the bag, she removes a Lean Cuisine, a giant bottle of cream soda and four giant bars of Chunky chocolate. She pops the Lean Cuisine into the oven and walks back into the living room to an old stereo. She turns the TURNTABLE on -- a record already set upon it. She stands by her coffee table, as if taking position:

Suddenly, we hear ETHEL MERMAN -- as Lydia lip-syncs every word with complete commitment -- giving a full out performance.

ETHEL/LYDIA

Got no sunshine, got no rain
 Still I think I'm a lucky dame
 I got the sun in the morning
 And the moon at night...

Her attempts at hand gestures and choreography are awkward -- bumping into the coffee table, banging her hand against a lamp -- but, we see a part of Lydia that few (actually no one) sees. Her abandon, her joy... her smile. From upstairs, neighbors BANG for her to keep the music down. Lydia casually crosses to the stereo, turns off the turntable and heads back to the kitchen -- as if the neighbors interference were all apart of her nightly ritual.

50 INT. ANNE'S APARTMENT - NIGHT

Anne sits alone at her formica table, smoking a cigarette. Two plates are set. She waits for Jack. She is hurt and pissed off. TONY ORLANDO AND DAWN play on her stereo.

TONY ET AL

Knock three times... on the ceiling if you want me... Twice on the pipes...

The SONG continues as the CAMERA SLOWLY PANS up to CLOSEUP of Anne, who is fighting with an imaginary Jack.

ANNE

Ya fuckin' bastard. I don't need this...

(emphasizing)

... I Do Not Need This! A woman my age... I am a person. This is kid stuff. You come! You go! And all I do is cook like a jerk! You're a waste of good cutlets... I don't need

JACK

Don't you think it's time to go now?
Running around here during the day is one thing but at night we could be killed by a wide variety of people.

PARRY

Well that's stupid. This is my park just as much as it is theirs. You think it's fair they keep us out just because they make us think we'll get killed or something?

JACK

Yes. I think that's very fair.

PARRY takes off his pants and stands there naked.

JACK

(continuing)

.....What are you doing?

PARRY

Have you ever done any cloudbusting?
You lie on your back and you concentrate on the clouds...and you try to break them apart with your mind.
It's wild.

Parry lies down.

JACK

You can't do this! This is New York!
Nobody lies in naked in a field in New York..It's...it's too Midwestern.

PARRY

Come on, try it. Ya feel the air on your body - ya little fella's flappin' in the breeze.
...everybody in the city is busy with their business and no one knows we're

JACK

..Ha...Little fella? I mean the man talks to invisible people - he sees invisible horses - and he's naked in the middle of Central Park. I should be surprised? I'm not surprised. I'm fucking outta my mind to even be here!

PARRY (O.S.)

Who are you talking to Jack?

JACK

YOU'RE OUT OF YOUR FUCKING MIND!!

PARRY (O.S.)

Bingo!

Jack walks O.S.

A DEAD NAKED MAN...THE TWO WERE DEAD...HIS COMPANION WAS NAKED"...I hate when they use the word companion...It's stories about successful people falling into degenerate behavior. Makes them feel lucky to be boring and ordinary...People stink.

PARRY

- * Are there any questions?

JACK

- * What?

PARRY

(continuing)

- * Then let's begin with the story itself.
- * It's a story of the Grail myth...And although
- * there are several variations, my favorite
- * begins with the Fisher King as a young boy...
- * who had to spend a night alone in the forest
- * to prove his courage... and during that night,
- * he is visited by a sacred vision. Out of the - * fire, appears the Holy Grail - God's highest symbol of
- * divine grace. And a voice says to the boy,
- * "You shall be the guardian of the Grail, that it
- * may heal the hearts of men"...But the boy was
- * overcome ...Innocent and foolish, he was
- * blinded by greater visions - a life ahead filled
- * with beauty and glory, hope and power...Tears
- * filled his eyes as he sensed his own... invincibility.
- * A boy's tears of naive wonder and inspiration.
- * and in this state of...radical amazement...he felt
- * for a brief moment, not like a boy, but like God...

(Jack listens intently)

- * ...And so he reached into the fire to take the Grail.
- * And the Grail vanished. And the boy hands were * left caught in the flames...leaving him wounded

* and ashamed at what his recklessness had lost him.
* When he became King, he was determined to * reclaim his destiny and find the Grail...
* But with each year that passed, with each * campaign he fought, the Grail remained lost, and
* this wound he suffered in the fire grew worse...
* He became a bitter man. Life for him lost it's reason.
* With each disappointment, with each betrayal...
* with each loss ... this wound would grow...
* Soon the land began to spoil from neglect * and his people starved...Until finally,
* the King lost all faith in God's existance and in * man's value...He lost his ability to love or be loved
* And he was so sick with experience...
* that he started to die. As the years went on, * his bravest knights would search for the
* Grail that would heal their King and * make them the most respected and valued men in * the land, but to no avail. Pretty soon, finding * the Grail became a ruthless struggle between ambitious
* men vying for the King's power, which only confirmed
* the King's worst suspicions of man, causing his * wound to grow. His only hope, he thought, was death.
* Then one day, a fool was brought in to the King * to cheer him. He was a simple-minded man...
* not particularly skilled...or admired... He * tells the King some jokes...sing him some songs,
* but the King feels even worse...Finally, the * fool says, "What is it that hurts you so much?
* How can I help?"...And the King says, "I need
* a sip of water to cool my throat"...So, the fool * takes a cup from the bedstand, fills it with * water and hands it to the King...Suddenly,
* the King feels alot better. And when he looks * to his hands, he sees that it was the Holy Grail
* the fool handed him...an ordinary cup that had been
* beside his bed all along...And the King asks,
* "How can this be?...how could you find what
* all my knights and wisest men could not find"?
* And the fool answers, "I don't know. I only * knew you were thirsty"... And for the first time * since he was a boy, the King felt more than a man - * not because he was touched by God's glory...but * rather, by the compassion of a fool.

But PARRY seems far away. HE speaks like a professor:

PARRY

The Fisher King myth has a lot of derivations...I remember I was at this weekend seminar in Princeton once - and there was this one speaker...Henry Sa... Henry...uh...Henry...

HE stops. As if this memory escaped without any warning.

JACK

Well, see, I think she can help...You know women are great...they...they make homes and they..ya know, kill the livestock so the knights can go out and get Grails and...and slaughter villages with a clear head...I mean, where would Arthur be without Guinevere...

PARRY

Happily married, probably.

JACK

Bad example. Just trust me. A woman who loves you keeps you going...gives you strength... Makes you feel like you can do anything...

Forget it... It's a stupid idea.

Anne looks at him incredulously. He sits down and breathes a sigh -- the absurdity of the idea hitting him as well. Anne softens -- feeling like she has unfairly taken the wind out of his sail.

GAY BUM

LYDIA

But now it's free, right?

ANNE

Yeah.

Anne backs off. She stands next to an equally perplexed

PARRY

Lydia quickly turns -- she is uncomfortable by his closeness.

LYDIA

No. No... I can look myself...

She moves away abruptly -- like a fox terrier who pretends to ignore the mess she made on the living room rug.

Parry turns to Jack and Anne, as if to say "what do I do now?" Jack encourages him to keep trying. Parry organizes the boxes and picks one out.

PARRY

How about the "Hell Merchants"?

LYDIA

ANNE

I don't know... He's a little disgusting... Although some women go for that.

JACK (O.S.)

PARRY

Got any more starchy food?

Another opportunity to watch Anne's breasts in action, as she reluctantly rises to get him more macaroni. She returns with the pot.

Well talk back. He won't bite you.

ANNE

 What are you -- a 40 in a jacket?

Anne, frustrated with the two of them, exits.

63A EXT. VIDEO POP - NIGHT

Lydia walks up and RINGS the bell. BUZZED in -- she enters.

CUT TO:

64 INT. ANNE'S APARTMENT - LATER THAT EVENING

64

Anne opens the door to a cautious Lydia. Lydia nods, self-consciously, as if to say, "Yeah, I'm here."

ANNE
 Hello... welcome... come in.

Lydia enters, subtly inspecting the apartment.

LYDIA
 I've never been in an apartment above a store. You always pass them on the street but you never think anyone really lives in them.

ANNE

Can I get you anything...coffee...

LYDIA
No, thank you.

LYDIA sits at the formica table, already set up with nail care paraphernalia - with the gleaming steel nail files it looks a bit like surgery equipment.

LYDIA
Will it hurt?

ANNE (threateningly)
That all depends on you.
...Sure you don't want a drink?

LYDIA's a little nervous about this attempt at nail beauty.

64A INT. PARRY'S BASEMENT - NIGHT.

64A

Jack is cleaning up Parry - perhaps applying a green mud treatment.

CUT TO:

65 INT. ANNE'S APARTMENT - LATER THAT EVENING.

65

ANNE is seated at her formica table opposite LYDIA. SHE delicately holds one of LYDIA'S hands, carefully applying the stars to her nails. LYDIA sips her tequilla with one hand. ANNE'S glass is almost empty as she talks non-stop:

ANNE
...he says to me, "you'll never find another man like me"...I said, "please, men like you have one hand on their dicks and the other hand on their mother's leg... I said, there's the door - take a trip.

You threw him out?

ANNE makes a confident nod. LYDIA sips.

LYDIA
My parents were divorced.

ANNE
It's an awful thing, let me tell you.
My Aunt used to say,
(emphasizing)
"divorce is the sister-in-law of death".

ANNE nods knowingly. LYDIA squints as she considers this.

CUT TO:

66 INT. PARRY'S BASEMENT - SAME TIME.

66

JACK stands behind a seated PARRY in front of a mirror. PARRY'S hair is wet. JACK places a can of styling mousse in front of him. PARRY squeezes a ball of mousse in his hand, then applies it to his head....PARRY proceeds to experiment with a number of styles - adding more and more mousse as JACK watches in silence. PARRY molds his hair into a cone, then divides into two cones, then mashes it into a pompadour, then splits the pompadour - PARRY is having a wonderful time - applying enormous amounts to his head and eyebrows....Finally, JACK grabs the can out of PARRY'S hand.

CUT BACK TO:

67 INT. ANNE'S ~~APARTMENT~~ A LITTLE LATER.

67

ANNE works ~~on~~ LYDIA'S other hand, as LYDIA sips her tequilla from a ~~straw~~

ANNE
...SO...anybody special in your life?

(defensive)
Do I look like I have someone special?

ANNE

Well, don't say it like that. It's not so...ya know, crazy an idea. You are a healthy woman... You hold a steady job. Ya not crossed eyed or anything...

LYDIA

Well, there's nobody special!

ANNE

Fine.

LYDIA

(pause, then:)

I mean, it's not easy in this day and age.

ANNE

What?

LYDIA

Meeting ... people.

ANNE

Tell me about it. I've been dating longer than I've been driving. I can't believe that.

LYDIA

I never really...went through a... dating period.

ANNE

It's a disgusting process. You haven't missed anything.

LYDIA nods in agreement, but her face tells us she feels she has missed a great deal.

CUT TO:

68 INT. PARRY'S BASEMENT - NIGHT

68

PARRY, cleaned and dressed up - his hair moussed back, the suit is too big. PARRY paces back and forth in the hallway as JACK tries to staple the sleeves of the suit shorter for PARRY's arms.

JACK

Will you stand still so I can do this!

PARRY

I'm sorry....I'm just so excited.

(JACK smiles)

You must have felt this way when you first met Anne, huh?
Where did you two meet?

JACK

In a bar called Hellfire.

PARRY

Tch...how romantic. Yeah. If I wasn't already committed to Lydia, boy. Except Anne'd never go for me though. She loves you too much. And you really love her, huh?

JACK

No. But that's not the only reason people get together or..stay together.

PARRY

What are the other reasons?

JACK thinks a moment, then answers plainly:

JACK

Survival.

PARRY puts his arm on JACK'S shoulder and speaks very sincerely.

PARRY

(earnest)

You love her alot Jack. You're ... crazy about her...It's just that, sometimes, you're a little bit of an asshole.

JACK is surprised by the remark and abruptly focuses on PARRY.

69 INT. ANNE'S APARTMENT - LATER

LYDIA is a little more loose and talkative now as ANNE refills her glass, then takes LYDIA'S other hand to apply the stars.

LYDIA

(deadpan)

...My mother calls every week.

Like a recurring nightmare.

"So, have you met anyone?"... "No mom"...

"So what's going to happen?"...

"I don't know Mom"...

I only thank God I moved out.

ANNE

I can't believe you lived with her for that long. If I had to live with my mother, I'd stab myself six times.

LYDIA

I think some people are meant to be alone.

(she takes a slug)

Maybe I was a man in a former life and I used women for pleasure so now I'm paying for it - which would be fine, if I could just remember some of the pleasure parts...

(drinks)

ANNE

I don't understand you. What is the problem?

LYDIA

I don't feel like I make any impression on people...
At office parties I spend my time re-arranging the hors d'oeuvres as people eat them, so the platters will always look full.
I don't start conversations because I have no idea how to end them...I think I'm just meant to live in the background of things...

ANNE

That's not true...You gotta ease up...
Conversations have a life of their own.
You gotta just go with it...We're having a lovely conversation.

LYDIA

(bluntly)
I'm paying you.

ANNE drops her hand. SHE's pissed.

ANNE

You know, let me tell you something!
I'm not that kind of person. I don't do people favors. If I talk to you it's because I want to. So we're not all ...uh...Jerri Hall...Big deal...
What a boring world if we were.
You do the best you can with what you got.
You're not so invisible, ya know...
You want make an impression? Try this;
you can be a real bitch.

LYDIA

(her face lights up)
Really?

ANNE

Yeah!

LYDIA smiles at the thought of have such an impressionable

(HANDS HIM WALLET)

Here's my wallet, so you can pay for dinner?

JACK adjusts PARRY'S tie, then undoes it and re-ties.

PARRY takes wallet, keeping his eyes on JACK, as JACK primps him.

PARRY

...You're a nice man, Jack.

Doing all this for me...

JACK doesn't pay attention as PARRY'S expression grows pale and frightened. HE suddenly raps his arms around JACK and whispers;

PARRY

I'm scared Jack.

JACK, uncomfortable at the intimacy, tries to comfort him.

PARRY

...I feel so much for her...I feel like something awful is going to happen.

JACK

No. Nothing bad's going to happen.

Anne'll be there. I'll be there.

Nothing bad will happen.

PARRY

I'm still scared.

CUT BACK TO:

69B INT. ANNE'S APARTMENT - NIGHT.

69B

ANNE and LYDIA share a drink....

ANNE

It's hard being a woman. I don't care what anybody says...People say we have choices - we have no choices...My grandma used to say that, for a woman in this world, behind every door there's either death...or husband.

LYDIA cracks up laughing.

SHE takes another sip as JACK knocks on the door and enters with PARRY.

JACK

Anne...!

(to LYDIA)

Oh hi? How's it going?

LYDIA loses her smile and becomes self-conscious and protective.

JACK

Parry, it's Lydia Sinclair - our membership winner.

PARRY

I know!

JACK turns to find that PARRY is still outside the apartment.
HE crosses to PARRY . The two whisper intensely....

ANNE

What are you two up to?

JACK

Well..everything's closed up.
We thought we'd get some dinner.
(overplaying it)
Say!....Anybody up for Chinese?
(to LYDIA)
Have you eaten? Would you like to come along?

LYDIA

(rises, uncomfortable)
Oh, no..I have to get home...

ANNE

The nails!! Watch the nails!!....
(LYDIA sits back down)
Listen, you still have to eat.

PARRY stands in b.g. with JACK, whispering....

LYDIA

No really..I can't.

LYDIA smiles as PARRY and JACK reach an agreement.
All four turn to each other spontaneously and say:

ANNE, JACK, LYDIA, PARRY

Fine.

70 OMIT SCENE

70

CUT TO:

70A EXT. STREET NEAR BROOKLYN BRIDGE - NIGHT

70A

PARRY and LYDIA walk and talk. ANNE and JACK walk behind them.

LYDIA

...I..uh..I get to read some of the books but mostly I..just calculate production costs from first edition hard cover publication to paperback. After paperback it's basically someone else's problem.

PARRY

It sounds exciting.

LYDIA

Why does it sound exciting? There's absolutely nothing exciting about it.

* As Parry talks, he picks up a piece of garbage on the sidewalk.

PARRY

Well, you're calculating costs that could have an affect on whether or not the book is published and if it is, it could be a book that...
....might somehow change the way people think or act - a book can do that.
And you would be a part of creating a cultural shift that could change our society forever.

70A CONTINUED:

70A

- * Parry deposits the garbage in a garbage can and is almost
- * about to browse through it when:

JACK

Parry!

- * Parry is alerted by Jack that this would be inappropriate.
- * However, he does take a wire champagne cork wrapper, indiscreetly *

LYDIA

We mostly publish trashy romance novels.

PARRY

Well - empires have fallen because of trashy romances....

- * Parry seems to be fashioning something out of the wire.

PARRY

(continuing)

...Romance is romance no matter what kind it is...It could be a Victorian lady kidnapped by a viral sea captain with a hairy chest...or a horny pizza boy seduced by a housewife with a hairy upper lip.
As long as there's heart, passion, and little bit of fantasy...romance is the stuff of dreams...there's always more to trash than meets the eye...

- * With this, Parry shows her his creation - a little wire chair
- * made from the champagne wire. Lydia is impressed. Their
- * eyes meet for a dangerous moment, until:

A LARGE MAN walks by, bumping into LYDIA without apology and knocking Parry's gift of the ground....

PARRY

...Hey!

The LARGE MAN continues walking as PARRY reaches to his back pocket to pull out his SLINGSHOT when:

JACK/ANNE

PARRY

This is Lydia!

MARTIN

Nice to meet you Lydia! Got a quarter?!

MARTIN

Thank you. God bless...

(to Parry)

LYDIA

How do you know him?

PARRY

Lydia

ANNE and LYDIA sit opposite JACK and PARRY.
THEY are served three large orders of dumplings.

ANNE

Oh...I could eat all of these

LYDIA is nervous about this. As everyone begins to eat, SHE eyes her chopsticks with reluctance.

PARRY looks at her and smiles encouragingly.
LYDIA forces a smile back, picks up her chopsticks and dives in.
PARRY watches her in adoration. JACK subtly tries to get PARRY to stop staring. But PARRY is glued to his vision.

To save her from embarrassment, PARRY drops his dumpling into his lap as well.

PARRY

Oh boy...

LYDIA takes her napkin and dips it into a glass of water.
PARRY follows suit.

When LYDIA removes the napkin, her glass falls over.
PARRY forces his glass over, as well.

ANNE and JACK are looking at this mirror exercise in fascination.

PARRY

(to LYDIA)

Can't take us anywhere, huh?

LYDIA can't help but smile - a little more at ease now. Grateful she is not the clumsy center of attention.

* JACK leans over and whispers to ANNE:

* JACK
* What do you think?

* ANNE
* I think they're made for each other.
* And it scares me.

FADE TO:

LATER IN THE EVENING.

WE PAN the table as everyone eats their main courses.

LYDIA, we discover, has another eating idiosyncrasy. SHE unconsciously, but quite loudly, smacks her mouth when she chews.

LYDIA (O.C.)

SMACK..SMACK...SMACK...

71

WE HEAR THIS SMACKING OFF CAMERA as we begin on JACK; trying not to look at LYDIA but having difficulty enjoying his own meal. CAMERA moves to PARRY, staring at her, helplessly in love, not paying any attention to his own food; moving to LYDIA "SMACK, SMACKING", beginning to accept PARRY'S attraction in her and, warming up to the idea, SHE throws a smile at him in between "smacks"; and finally ANNE, chewing quietly, staring at JACK with her eyes widened twice their normal size, indicating her disbelief at LYDIA'S vocal variety of noises.

PARRY

gazing at his sweetheart, a song to serenade comes to mind and he softly begins:

PARRY

Lydia... Oh Lydia... That encyclopedia. Oh Lydia the tattooed lady...

His gentle voice counterbalances the odd lyrics and makes it sound like a love song.

Anne eyes Jack to stop him.

Jack is about to make an attempt but can't seem to find the way, so he doesn't bother.

Lydia doesn't know how to respond either. At first she smiles politely, then she pretends to be too busy eating to listen -- but something about Parry's sincerity pulls her in. His face glows as he floats the lyrics across the table to her. Slowly, her smacking subsides, she lowers her fork, forgets her self-consciousness and listens to Parry -- slightly hypnotized; like a little girl watching a ballerina for the first time.

Jack is fascinated by Parry's complete adoration of this mess of a woman. He looks to Anne, who tries to continue her meal nonchalantly. He notices her bra strap hanging out from her sweater.

CAMERA CUTS BACK AND FORTH between the exposed strap and Jack, as Parry continues serenading O.S. Anne realizes Jack is staring at her and immediately thinks something's wrong. But Jack just smiles at her. His hand reaches across the table, not to fix her sweater, but to take her hand. Anne is in shock. She slips her hand into his and smiles back, her eyes almost tearing.

When Parry finishes, he smiles.

PARRY

Would it be all right... I mean would you mind... if I walked you home tonight?

Lydia nods. From O.S., Parry's hand holds a napkin and gently dabs a stain of soy sauce on her sleeve.

CUT TO:

72 EXT. VIDEO SPOT - NIGHT.

She seemed to go for him. Hmmm...
There's somebody for everybody, huh?

JACK very pleased with himself.

JACK

You know, I can't believe I did it.
You think it'll work out?

ANNE

Who's knows. My Aunt Marge used to say,
"some matches are made in heaven, some are made in hell and some are made in hardware stores".

JACK

Nothing it's just...I begining to understand you.

ANNE

(smiles)
Well...I think you should feel very proud. You did a real nice thing for somebody else. I'm very proud.

JACK

You were great. Thanks alot.

HE kisses her hard and long. ANNE pulls away to catch her breath.
SHE is surprised, to say the least.

ANNE

Your welcome.

JACK tenderly brushes her hair off her face. HE kisses her again.

PARRY

What are we about to do?

LYDIA

Well... you're walking me home. I... I guess you're sort of... attracted to me and you'll want to come upstairs for... coffee...

PARRY

I don't drink coffee...

LYDIA

(driving herself into a complex)

... you'll be distant and you won't be... able to stay for breakfast... you'll just have some coffee maybe...

PARRY

I don't drink coffee.

LYDIA

And then we'll exchange phone numbers and you'll leave and never call and I'll go to work and feel great for the first hour and then slowly turn into a piece of dirt by lunch. Why am I putting myself through this?

LYDIA

Listen, I'm not feeling well.

PARRY

Well, no wonder. We just met, made love and broke up all in the space of thirty seconds and I can't even remember the first kiss which is the best part.

LYDIA

Listen, you're very nice... b...

PARRY

So are you, but I think maybe you should shut up now...

(Lydia is surprised)

... I'm not coming up to your apartment. That was never my idea.

LYDIA

Oh... You mean you don't want to.

PARRY

(deeply sincere)

Oh no, I want to.

(sweetly)

I've got a hard-on for you the size of Florida... but I don't... want just one night. I have a confession to make?

LYDIA

You're married.

PARRY

No.

Lydia is about to speak when Parry puts his hand over her mouth.

PARRY

(continuing)

... It's not just from tonight. I've known you for a long time. I see you come out of work every day. I walk with you to lunch. I know what you order... I see you buy Baby Ruths before going back in...

(slowly removes his hand)

I know how you feel on certain days by whether or not you go into the bookstore...

(Lydia listens with fascination)

... I know you hate your job and you don't have many friends and you sometimes feel like you're not as... as wonderful as everybody else and you're a little uncoordinated...

(Lydia begins to cry)

... and feeling like you're the only one who's as separate and... alone as you are... and I love you. I love you. I think you're the greatest thing since... spice racks and I would be knocked out several times if I even got just a first kiss. But I'll be back in the morning. And I won't be distant. And I will call if you let me... But I still don't drink coffee.

LYDIA

Shhh...

She kisses him, tentatively -- almost awkwardly. Parry feels a surge of emotion that makes his whole body tremble. Lydia separates from him and looks into his eyes. She pinches his cheek, hard.

Parry is standing frozen... We don't know whether he's looking ahead of him or in his mind's eye... He appears anxious and frightened as he steps back, away from Lydia's building... He senses someone is watching him. Parry smiles. But suddenly it is as if everything has gone into SLOW MOTION. His eyes focus on her skirt as it swirls around as she turns... His expression grows dark: O.S. we hear a horse's HOOFES moving in slowly as CAMERA moves to CLOSEUP. He slowly turns his head and looks down the block to the corner to see:

The Red Knight. He sits upon his horse as if waiting for Parry. The street lamps cast a glow around his imposing figure. The night air lifts his cape up around his massive shoulders.

Parry, vulnerable, afraid, whispers plainly:

You made coffee?... You're going back to work and you made coffee?... I love this!

Jack stops organizing for a beat.

ANNE

you have to get a job first, but I'm

Jack brings out his sports jacket, then returns to his tapes, hoping he can avoid having to respond.

JACK

Ugh, these tapes are a mess. I don't know where to begin...

ANNE

or even, maybe the top floor of a house -- like in Brooklyn or Staten Island...

Jack looks at her, not knowing what to say.

ANNE

You want to talk? Come on, Jack...
Did I cross the line by mentioning

JACK
No... it's just...

Anne shifts her body to face him directly.

JACK

... Listen, so much has happened and I think it would be a good thing for both of us if we slowed things down a

ANNE
Slowed things down? Where have I been? Have we been going fast?

JACK
Right now, I'm just not sure about... making such definite plans.

Pause. Anne stares at him like he's speaking Dutch.

ANNE
I'm lost. What are you saying?!

Jack sits them both down, takes her hand in his, takes a

Anne is speechless -- for the moment.

JACK

ANNE

(interrupts -- getting upset)
First of all, let me tell you something -- you don't know shit. Second of all, as far as we go, what time do you need? What have we been doing here, except time? Have I ever... ever pressured you?

JACK

No.

ANNE

No. So what time do you need? I love you -- you love me -- you want to get your career going, great! I'd like to be a part of it -- I think I deserve that! So what do you need time to figure out alone!?

Jack doesn't answer. Pause. Anne is afraid she knows.

JACK

I didn't know. I just said all I want is some time.

All right... I'll pack my stuff tonight.

Anne slaps him again.

ANNE

PARRY lays in bed - his face bandaged, his arms in a cast, his chest tightly rapped. HE has been severely beaten. JACK and ANNE stand at the foot of the bed in shock. A DOCTOR appears. The DOCTOR is young, dedicated and inexperienced enough to still feel compassion.

JACK

Parry?

DOCTOR

He can't hear you.

He'll snap out it?

DOCTOR

I'm afraid not ... Then again, I'm not sure. The beating's bad but it's not the problem... It seems he's.. re-experiencing the catatonia... So, like before, he could snap out it in an hour or in thirteen months or thirteen years...I don't know. There's no way to tell.

JACK

But..How could that happen?

DOCTOR

Well, it's not unusual in his case... Sometimes victims of tragedies are subject to the brain's replay system. The brain never loses anything - it just stores it up and waits. A person could actually re-experience the full effect of a tragedy long after the event took place. I was reading how he lost this wife... Are you relatives?

(JACK shakes his head)

Well, it doesn't matter. We'll take care of it. He'll have to be sent back to the same institution..

(HE checks the record)

JACK

What if I was a relative?

JACK

Well, I'm gone.... Have a perfect weekend and remember on Monday, we have as our studio guest, Ben Starr - star of the recently defunct hit TV show ON-THE-RADIO - it's the rise and fall story of one of televisions brightest stars ruined by charges of sodomy in an Atlanta airport mens room. If you often wonder, "what IS sodomy exactly?" Ben'll have that answer and many more for you on Monday's show...Until then, don't do anything that will break your pattern of being the selfish scum sucking race you are. From one of the Botched to all of your bungled cats out there, I love ya and right back at cha! Over and out!

HE flicks his monitor off as a commercial takes over. The CREW work in silence behind him. HE rubs his tired face and sits there.

CAMERA PAUSES on JACK for a moment as he sits in silence. HE looks neither happy nor sad, neither satisfied nor unsatisfied. HE looks blank...emotionless...as if he knows something is lacking but he hasn't the strength or interest to find out.... THE PHONE RINGS - breaking the silence. JACK picks up.

JACK

Jack's heart stops. He looks into the darkness of the roof but sees nothing. He tries to slow down his heart and shake away thoughts of demons in the dark. He continues cutting. When he finishes the entire pane, he replaces the cutter in his pocket then plasters his arm against the tape. He gently bangs the pane and it comes loose, sticking to the tape. He is impressed. He holds it reverently for a moment, then, noticing an inscription, reads:

TO LITTLE LANNIE CARMICHAEL
FOR ALL HIS HARD WORK... P.S. 247 CHRISTMAS PAGEANT 1932

Jack can't help but smile. He takes the chalice and turns, when suddenly he notices:

The bare foot of a man barely sticking out from in front of the Chesterfield chair. Jack slowly moves around the large back of the chair to the front and sees, to his amazement: LANGDON CARMICHAEL, wearing only his silk pajama bottoms, asleep in the chair. On the table beside him is an empty bottle of vodka and an empty bottle of pills.

Jack doesn't know what to do, when it suddenly strikes him that Carmichael hasn't moved at all. At first, he thinks it's another hallucination, but then he notices the pill bottle. He takes a step toward it, the floor SQUEAKING beneath him but Carmichael remaining unconscious. He reads the bottle: Seconal. Jack looks at Carmichael's limp body and checks his heart. 102 INT. OAKBROOK INSTITUTE - DAY

Lydia makes her way down the corridor, pushing her way through the swinging doors into Parry's ward. She is stopped in her tracks by what she sees:

Parry has gathered all the patients to the center of the room, and is teaching them how to sing "Groovin'". Jack is watching. Although most are not getting it, all are having a good time. When one of the patients turns to look at Lydia, Parry turns as well... His face lights up as he says:

PARRY

Hiya, sweetheart! Where you been?

Lydia loses control and begins to cry through her smile. Parry approaches and wraps his arms around her.

PARRY

(continuing)

Don't cry... Hey...

Lydia ~~wraps~~ her arms around him.

PARRY

(continuing)

... Are you my girl?... Are you my girl...?

Lydia sobs and nods on his shoulder. Parry holds her tighter.

CUT TO:

103 INT. VIDEO POP - DAY.

103

ANNE sits in her office, a cigarette dangling from her mouth, going over receipts. There is a knock at the door. A beat of silence. ANNE raises her head to discover JACK, holding a bouquet of flowers. HE smiles. ANNE looks shocked, then - pulling herself together...THEY both are frozen in silence:

ANNE

Well! What do you want me to do - applaud?

JACK

How have you been?

ANNE

(coldly)

Terrific. Going on alot of dates ... seeing lots of men... lots of dates..

JACK nods. HE is uncharacteristically nervous.

ANNE

(sincere, vulnerable)

Jack please...I'm having a bad month. I'm not up to this. What are you doing here?

HE takes a breath, looks at ANNE and pushes the words out of him.

JACK

I love you.

For once, ANNE is speechless. She slowly rises from behind her desk in such a way that JACK takes a step back in fear. ANNE walks up to him. She has no intention of making this easy.

ANNE

~~Waste~~ me, I didn't get all that...
~~Waste~~ you-run it by me again.

JACK is dying. HE could hardly say it the first time.

JACK

I think..(quickly corrects himself)
I...I realized...I love you.

ANNE

Huh-huh....You son of a bitch!

SHE hauls off and cracks him a slap across the face that stuns him - his knees giving out, lowering him to the floor. SHE quickly grabs his face with her hands and plants a passionate kiss on his lips, that slowly causes him to rise back up. HE drops the flowers and grabs her. SHE mounts his body and begin to undo his suit. THEY go at it with such passion, they both fall to the floor.

ANNE: (O.C.)

Jesus. What rock hit YOU in the head?

CAMERA PANS OUT of the STORE and up to the DAY SKY, then PANS down from the NIGHT SKY, filled with billowy clouds set against a midnight blue backdrop.

104 EXT CENTRAL PARK - NIGHT.

104

CAMERA PANS DOWN PARRY and JACK, lying naked, cloudbusting.

PARRY

Beautiful night huh?

JACK

Yeah.....Hey they're moving....

(pause)

Am I doing that?
